Objective

The Endangered Species Conservation Fund (FONCER) is a financial mechanism composed of endowment resources that aim to conserve species at risk and their habitats within protected areas (PAs) and their areas of influence.

These species include the peninsular pronghorn, California condor, Mexican wolf, and olive ridley and Kemp's ridley turtles.

Initiatives supported in the last call.

Lines of work

- 1 Conservation and/or recovery of endangered species and their habitats.
- 2 Participation of local communities that contribute to species conservation management actions.

Achievements

Generation of resources for future conservation initiatives that ensure the continued protection of threatened wildlife in Mexico.

Data updated at the end of 2023.
