Objective

The objective of the Mesoamerican Reef Leadership Program (MAR-L) is to accelerate conservation impacts in the Mesoamerican Reef System (MAR) ecoregion, which includes Mexico, Belize, Honduras, and Guatemala. It seeks to develop the capabilities and enhance the talent of young conservationists in the region to design and implement high-impact conservation projects.

Lines of work

- 1 Recruitment of talent and development of capabilities.
- 2 Design and implementation of high-impact projects with a business focus, with the support of specialists.

- 3 Creation of a network of leaders and specialists in marine and coastal issues.

Achievements

More than 80 conservation projects incubated.

145 leaders with developed skills.

67 leaders have advanced to positions of greater responsibility, and 25 have influenced public policies.

Data updated at the end of 2023.
