Objective

The project's objective is to conserve the grasslands and species that inhabit Rancho El Uno (ReU) through regenerative cattle ranching, low-stress bison handling, and grassland restoration.

Lines of work

- 1 Ecosystem functionality for wildlife representative of the native grasslands of the Chihuahuan Desert.
- 2 Synergy with local and national stakeholders for more effective management.
- 3 Financial sustainability for the conservation of ReU.

Achievements

Conservation of 18,546 hectares of native grasslands, habitat for migratory birds and iconic species, such as the golden eagle.

Management and conservation of 367 American bison.

Data updated at the end of 2023.
